FREDERICTON, NB – Carleton AgriSolutions in collaboration with current provincial veterinarians are pleased to announce they will be taking over the delivery of veterinary care services to New Brunswick farmers next year.

“We are a locally owned company with deep roots in Carleton County,” said company VP of Sales and Marketing Peter Carpenter. “Our company has been meeting the needs of New Brunswick farmers for almost 80 years, and we are proud to take on this new role of collaborating with the vets to providing large animal veterinary services.”

The company’s next step in the transition is to continue working with provincial veterinarians, commodity groups and stakeholders to build a sustainable system for New Brunswick. “Our goal is to develop an approach that supports continuity of care and minimizes impact to veterinarians, producers, and other clients who rely on large animal veterinary service,” said Peter.

Carleton AgriSolutions will work closely with the province throughout the transition period to ensure minimal impacts to service.

Dr. Lisa Freeze, Provincial Field Veterinarian Supervisor, expressed confidence in the partnership. “We made the decision to partner with Carleton AgriSolutions in order to continue to support the needs of New Brunswick’s livestock industry. As a group, we are focused on supporting large animal welfare in every corner of the province and this collaboration allows us to continue to provide that service.”

“The New Brunswick Cattle Producers stated our position shortly after the government announcement in late March, that any path forward must ensure veterinary services remain accessible across all regions of the province in both official languages, emergency and after-hour care is readily available and animal health and welfare standards are not compromised” said Board Chair Trevor Welch. “We are pleased that Carleton Agri-Solutions a New Brunswick company owned and operated by New Brunswick farmers, who are familiar with agriculture in our province, are taking on this task. And with support from the current provincial veterinarians we are confident that they will be able to move forward to develop a realistic plan to ensure the priorities laid out by NBCP are met.”

Carleton AgriSolutions formerly NB Seed Grower Coop has been serving the agricultural community since 1947, offering a wide range of products and services.
